LOUISVILLE, Oct. 21.—Yesterday morning non-union molders assembled at Bridgeford & Co.'s to resume work. The Union men, getting wind of this action, endeavored to deter them from carrying out their purpose, and it is said threatened violence if they did so. In order to prevent any intimidation Messrs. Bridgeford & Co. informed the Chief of Police, and several officers were detailed to guard the foundry.

Before seven o'clock a large number of Union men had assembled along Sixth street, near Main, and when those who had agreed to resume work put in an appearance, several of them were stopped and threatened, but no violence was committed, and they were allowed to go on about their business. A "heat" was effected at the foundry, and after a lapse of three weeks, work was resumed. Messrs. Bridgeford & Co. had their place guarded all day, but no interference was made, and all now moves smoothly.

MR. STORRS' SENTIMENTS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Hon. Emory A. Storrs returned to Chicago yesterday, after two weeks' absence in New York, during which time he made five speeches at Elmira, Cortland, Ithaca, Auburn, Syracuse and Norwich. In an interview he said that the Republican party in New York is more thoroughly united than it has been at any time since 1868, and possibly since 1864.

Recent utterances of President Hayes concerning the canvass in New York and that he desired the election of Cornell is effectually healing any differences that did exist. Moderate Republicans put Cornell's majority as high as 50,000 and enthusiastic Republicans claim 100,000. On Presidential questions Mr. Storrs said there is no essential difference between the feeling in Illinois and New York. The drift is all in one way, towards Grant.

TO OFFER THE GRANT ROOM.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—A Washington special reports ex-Senator Vance, of North Carolina, as saying that the general sentiment of North Carolina and of the South is unfavorable to the nomination of Tilden for the Presidency. Speaking of the chances of Senator Bayard and Gen. Hancock for the Democratic nomination Vance said: "Bayard's opposition to the silver bill had flattened him. Hancock is our man. I am heartily tired of soldiers and would prefer to see a civilian in the Executive Chair, but we need a Union soldier to offset this Grant boom."

A Shooting Butcher.

About 1 o'clock this afternoon a striking butcher named Charles Busch, went to H. Verhage's packing-house, No. 209 Walnut street, and being slightly under the influence of liquor, commenced abusing several of the hands at work there.

The foreman attempted to put him out, when he drew a pistol and commenced shooting at everybody in the place. He had full sweep until officers were telegraphed for at the Ninth-street Station-house.

Officer Duffy was detailed to arrest Busch. As soon as the latter saw Duffy come in the front entrance he darted out the back way into Lodge alley. After a chase of four or five squares he was captured and lodged in the Ninth Street Station-house. Luckily none of the shots fired by Busch struck anybody.

A WAKING TRANCE.

The Strange Story of a Man Who Loses Himself Occasionally.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

A physiological expert is Mr. W. C. De Fries, the merchant from Columbus, Ohio, whose mysterious absence was chronicled in these columns a few days ago. He has come back from his trance wandering and, although he is not explicit, he has said enough to put him down in the category of curious human transformations for whose actions there is no accounting. He was put on an Olive street car Monday night at 11 o'clock, and the conductor was told to put him off at Thirty-fourth and Pine streets.

He was not seen any more that night, nor the next, nor the next following, and did not turn up until Friday night, when he went home, rang the bell, was admitted, and in response to the numerous inquiries of his distracted wife and daughter, he only replied, "That's all right; that's all right." Subsequently he was induced to tell a little story about himself as follows:

Some years ago he was in California, and started home one evening, when he was suddenly seized with the notion that he wouldn't go home. He retraced his footsteps, and wandered about for nearly he supposed was a trance.

When he was started for home last Monday evening, he says, he got off the car and went over to the house where he was boarding, when something told him not to go in. He came back down town, hired a room in an obscure German hotel, where he remained for several days. He says he knew what he was doing all the while, but had no control of himself when he thought of going home. Thursday evening he came down town, and stood in front of the Globe-Democrat office for two hours. He came into the business office, bought a paper, and looking it over he saw a notice of his disappearance. He read it over twice, and then said to himself, "That's me; I am missing." He went back to his hotel, and Friday night returned to his home, but gave no explanation of his absence further than is here related.
